

Figure 4.

Example of interpretation of QSAR models visualized as color-coding according to atom contributions in change of sensitization potential: red – sensitization increase; blue – sensitization decrease; green – no significant contribution. Green arrows represent higher confidence of the prediction. This information helps to guide structural transformation of human skin sensitizer phenyl benzoate into various non-sensitizers (see Figure 3).